

The Big Fat Get My File Download Script

The Easy Way To Disguise Your Download Links!

I Know You Need This Script! I did!

If you sell ebooks on eBay and EMAIL download links to your customers or have download links on your website, then this simple little PHP script is for you!

Get My File allows you to disguise your download links to hide the real location of your files. For example, your normal download link may be:

http://www.mywebsite.com/downloads/my_file.zip Now, there is nothing to stop a data thief from typing <http://www.mywebsite.com/downloads/> in their browser and stealing all your website's files without paying. But, with Get My File, the download link that you email your customers will be:

http://www.mywebsite.com/getmyfile.php?file=my_file.zip The link will be disguised and the location of the file will not be revealed!

Also, if a data thief tries to browse your downloads folder, it will show an Access Denied message.

It's really simple to install! Simply enter the location of your downloads folder into the script and upload it to your web server! That's it!

Requirements:

Linux/Unix web server required with PHP 4 or above. NOTE: This script is NOT an automatic digital download script.

It is simply a script that allows you to disguise your download links.

I've had this script sitting on my desktop and I've researched digital download scripts over the last few days. Most prices start at $67 and they go up anywhere to $129 or above. After careful consideration and talking with a friend on a forum I decided to try what he's been using for years. When he mentioned it I remembered it and went immediately and uploaded the script and tried it out. It works beautifully!

So, there you have my personal recommendation for this script to protect your downloads either from your website or from your ebay auctions!
